The Fund for the Relief of the Hannans Growing.

For the first time in his life, probably, Roundsman Mathew F. Dalley, whose trial for alleged criminal assault on pretty Mamie Hannan, is now progressing before Recorder Smyth, in Part II. of the General Sessions. this morning realized what it was to look out from behind fron bars as a prisoner.

ROUNDSMAN DAILEY.

Ever since his arrest was ordered May 24 last by Police Justice Taintor this man, accused of one of the most helnous of crimes, has walked the streets with a freedom rarely accorded any one in a like position.

He has continued to draw his full roundsman's pay from the municipal Police Department, whose uniform he is alleged to have disgraced and whose rules and discipline he

And what of his alleged victim?

A Strong Contract.

Scorned and pointed at by the linger of shame, she has been deprived of securing employment and aiding her mother in keeping a roof over their lica is. Because of her daughter's misforeune, 100, the mother herself, for brutaily clubbing whom Dalley now stands indicted, has been deprived of her former custem as a laundress, and for weeks has not been able to earn a cent, although willing and anxious to work. ing and anxious to work.

Aged by Her Wrongs.

Mamie Hainan was seventeen years old last wednesday, but were she talier she might almost pass for a woman of thirty. Her fresh, red cheeks, which last March denoted the perfect health of youth, are now was and pallid.

In two months she will become a mother, and the removes and worthment occasioned by her condition, coupled with the disgrace she issenly forts, is apparent in every feature.

The Hainanus are not what are known as refined and cultured people, but the trackabors can testify that they are decest, honest and respectable, as well as industrious and neat.

Pailev's Alleged "Pull."
There are those who claim to know and are not backward in asserting that the starting difference between the circumstances of the principals in the action now being tried before Recorder Smyth is due solely to Rouademan Dailey's riganite "pull."
If it be a "pull" that has accorded him so much distinguished consideration it is crident that that "pull" has failed to penetrate the brown-stone court-house.

At the conclusion of yesterday's court proceedings Recorder smyth committed Dailey city, for 5,000,000 bags to take the place of barrels for the shipment of redice; sugars. Dailey came up to court this morning in the required prisoners from the Tomas and was piaced in the pen in the rear of the court-room, where he beguiled the wait for court to upen with a song.

When he came out and took a seat beside his counsel, Emanuel m. Friend and Frederick B. House, he looked somewhat paler than usual. As yesterday, however, he closely watched the examination of talesmen, and his attorneys invariably consulted him before accepting a juror.

When court opened at 11.10 this morning eight jurors, out of nearly forty examined, had been accepted. They were:
